Reading Tips

Read with a slow but steady upbeat tone and emphasize the sound effects. Notice the cadence and rhymes and ask the children to clap along if they want. Stop to ask questions like, "Look- they aren't having fun anymore. It says they are exhausted and their paws are sore. Why are they exhausted? What does that mean?" At the end ask, "How will the animals hear music if bear, Croc and Weasel are sleeping?"

Three readings are recommended to familiarize children with the story. During each reading the adult can introduce new vocabulary words, pose open-ended questions, and engage children in activities that make the story "come alive."

Throughout the Routine

Refer to the book throughout the day and use new vocabulary words in meaningful ways. Active engagement with the story helps the content come alive.

Play a variety of instrumental music clips in different genres for children to dance or move by for Large Group Time.

Make cards with the animals from the story. Encourage children to choose how to move around the room for transitions.

Use the instruments to encourage children to make musical patterns (Snap-poom-jingle-jangle) at Greeting or Small Group Time.

Around the Room

Highlight the book's content and build on the children's excitement in a variety of locations.

Add to the classroom instruments and make the Music Area a focus for exploration.

Add various versions of "The Bemen Town Musicians" to the Book Area for comparison.

Add photos of the animals from the story to the Block Area. Add the animals to the toy animal bin to encourage acting out the story.

Open-ended Questions

Enhance active engagement and early critical thinking skills by asking open-ended questions. These "wondering aloud" questions support children's developing focus and attention as they encourage young children's capacity to make connections and see possibilities.

Here are some questions you might ask for The Animal Song:

How did Bear, Croc and Weasel learn how to make music?

What will the animals do while Bear, Croc and Weasel sleep?

If you could play an instrument, what instrument would you choose?

Since many children in our county will have this book at home, use it to further the home-school connection. In your daily contact—in person or by text, email or other notes home—encourage families to share The Animal Song with their children. Here's a sample message you can send:

As you read this story with your child, gently and slowly sway to the cadence of the rhyme. Create movements for the sounds (clap, slap your leg, snap fingers for example) to help your child hear the pattern and play along with the animals. Ask questions like, "I wonder how Bear learned how to play that upright bass?" Ask your child to make predictions like, "If the forest animals are going for their winter sleep, what will the band do?" As the band members play in the "city", have a silly conversation with your child like, "Imagine us going downtown and seeing this animal band! What would you do?" Together sing, "Snap-poom-jingle-jangle" in the car, or while getting ready for bed!
